

1. Where can I find the FL agent's script on how to reply to customer's questions?

HERE

2. Will the customer be charged by the airline in the currency visible on our website?

As this depends on the office ID the system will send the ticket for issuance, there can be currency differences. For more information about how to update the customer please check the above document.

3. The Customer is calling, claiming that the card has expired. How are you - as the claims team - going to handle this? Will you be able to refund the same card, or will the GDS give an error? Does FL need to be prepared on how to answer such a question?

The refund is processed to the account connected to the credit card, therefore there should not be an issue if the card itself has expired.

4. The customer is calling, claiming that the bank account is currently closed, and can provide an official letter from the bank. I believe the current process demands that we will refund the old account and the customer can check with the bank, but we've seen cases with funds going back to our account, in this case, the airline's account (?). Do we have a plan on how to treat such a scenario, meaning is BO going to make any contact with the relevant parties? Does FL need to be prepared on how to answer such a question differently than we do currently, now that we have the funds on us?

5. Is there an option for passengers to choose CC2C payment on the payment page? How does the page look like and can a screenshot be shared?

No, the customer cannot choose the way we will pay the airline for the ticket. Screenshot from the payment page:

6. Will the currency conversion rate be visible to the passenger on the booking page?
We will never be able to show the conversion rate towards the customers as this is set by their bank.
7. How much does it affect the payment options of the customer? For example, can he still pay with Klarna?
These are only Card Customers, Klarna/Bank or customers paying with any other options are never subject to CC2C.
8. In Edvin we can see that the payment to be done by the customer to the airline has failed: is this normal?

10. In case the customer needs a business invoice, while the receipt on the website does not suit them, what should FL agents do in this case?

FL agents should follow the same routine as for non CC2C bookings.

(All business receipts are to be requested by the customer themselves on-site through my booking or the FL agents can assist them. There are guidelines in Shelf on how to handle any inquiries from customers requesting a Business receipt.

Step by step on how to inform the customer and also how FL agents can get the receipt.

Latest update: 2021-04-07 08:32

-  Refund request received
We have received your refund request.
-  Refund application to Virgin Australia
We have requested a refund from the airline.
-  Waiting for Virgin Australia to process the application
Your card was charged directly by Virgin Australia when you paid for your flight. This means from now on they will handle your case and any refund will come directly from them. We won't receive any further information so if you have questions, please direct them to Virgin Australia.

Did you add extra services? In that case, there may be an additional payment from our side for any extra services that are refundable.

We will never tell the customer when the airline will or has done the refund.

12. If a refund is delayed from the carrier and the customer contacts us, we should just forward him directly to the carrier as we mention in the CC2C cancellation confirmation letter, correct?

Yes.

13. For CC2C orders canceled due to tech error, If a refund is delayed from the carrier regarding the ticket and the customer contacts us, we should just forward him directly to the carrier, correct?

Yes.
