

1) What is considered a claim, and is to be handled by CR?

A claim is where a customer demands an amount of money due to an inconvenience / technical error/mishandling that stems (or may stem) from our agency.

e.g. A passenger claims compensation because we did not finalize a rebooking, thus forcing the customer to purchase a new ticket at the airport.

e.g. A passenger claims compensation because an add-on product was not properly utilized due to an error on our end, i.e. failing to issue pre-purchased luggage.

2) What is considered a complaint, and is to be handled by FL?

A complaint is a problem, a difficulty, a concern, a misunderstanding, or a misinterpretation on the customer's end; provided that none of the aforementioned is a direct result of our mishandling.

e.g. "A passenger complains about our involuntary fee."

e.g. Waiting time on the phone - Refund delays - Turbulence - Rude airport personnel - Travel Documents, etc.

3) What is the handling time for claims?

The goal is 30 days from when we receive the claim - we are currently at 7-10 days.

4) What is the average handling time for medical documents?

The SLA for handling a medical document is 2 weeks from when we receive it. Kindly note that the customer relations team solely evaluates medical documents related to our own cancellation protection. The refund is thereafter made by the back-office team.

5) Who do I contact in regards to errors/typos found in our terms and conditions?

Kindly contact Johan Krantz: johan.krantz@etraveligroup.com

6) I need CR's input on a specific case, how and where do I escalate it?

Kindly contact Hanna Strandquist: hanna.strandquist@etraveligroup.com

Hanna will make sure the case is reviewed and inputs provided by the most suitable person in the team for that specific case.

7) I want clarification on internal routines for the CR team - I want to implement a routine together with the CR team. Who do I reach out to?

Kindly contact Hanna Strandquist: hanna.strandquist@etraveligroup.com

8) Where can I locate the information regarding the additional steps a customer must take for the CR team to offer a resolution?

We can find this information in the 'Summary' section of the errands left by a CR specialist.
