

When you are receiving a call/email/chat related to a Support case, you should always aim to solve the case on spot, if possible.

Firstly, you need to clarify with the customer the request and check Edwin's errands the actions taken by the Support team.

- Awaiting Supplier Reply:

If the case is under the status "Awaiting Supplier Reply", check in etrack, with the etrack number if the Supplier replied.

- If yes, handle the case according to the Supplier's response and inform the customer accordingly, then remove the case from the support queue.
- If not, inform the customer that we are still pending the supplier's response.

- Awaiting Customer Reply:

If the case is under the status "Awaiting Customer Reply", make sure to clarify with the customer his response and finalize the request on phone. Then you can remove the case from the support queue.

- Unhandled or Need to be handled:

If the case is under the status "Unhandled" or "Need to be handled", check if you can provide a solution to the customer right away.

- If yes, then finalize the request and remove the case from the support queue. Note for FL inhouse agents (this does not affect SC agents): For unhandled payment links where you can assist the customer, but you notice that there is a price difference (higher) than the amount already paid and it is not caused due to a human error, kindly follow the Goodwill PL policy and the requirements, as described here under “Price changed (higher): If price increase max 50 EUR per order”. Otherwise, if the amount is higher than 50 EUR, inform the customer that the price has changed and charge him the additional amount. If the customer declines to pay, modify the order with reason "Ancillary voluntary" to send the order to BO to refund the rebooking cost.
In case the price difference is caused due to a human error, send the case to Support according to the standard Retail Loss Routine and ask the customer to wait.
- If not, then make sure that the customer's request is still valid and has not changed his/her mind, register an errand, and inform the customer that our support team is working on his case. If the customer contacts us 3 or more times for the same request and the case is still on the Support queue and you cannot handle the request on your own, consult your coordinator/TL/supervisor. The coordinator/TL/supervisor will check if the customer has indeed contacted us 3 or more times for the same request and prioritize the case.

* Attention: Make sure to document all your actions in your errands, including the escalation you have made to your coordinator/TL/supervisor, so that the next agents are aware.

* Attention: The change of the queue status to “ Need to be handled ” does not change the handling deadline and the urgency of the case. So, always contact your coordinator/TL/supervisor for urgent cases.
